Born, to the wife of Alvin Myers, near Spencer, Friday, November 6th, a son.

Mr. John Turley, living on Donaldson, this county, had the misfortune to lose his house by fire on Monday last.

Mr. John B. Phillips is now occupying the house he bought of R. M.
Smith, on Winn street. He took possession last week.

The Shakespeare class will meet at Major Fowler's to-morrow, (Wednesday) afternoon, at 3 o'clock, for the purpose of organization.

Mr. Sterling society goes out soon hunting. Nineteen of the 400 succeeded in capturing one coon and a lonely possum.—Lexington Transcript.

Mr. John W. Redmon, the past week moved into the pleasant home
he lately bought of Dr. J. P. Turner, on the Levee pike, in the suburbs of the city.

Born, to the wife of J. T. Coons, of Spencer, October 28th, a son, the first boy. Brack Duff says the mother and boy are doing well, but he is a little fearful about Tom.

Ex-Gov. Albert S. Marks died at Nashville, Wednesday morning. A native of Davis county, this State, he was Gov. Buchanan's legal adviser and one of the ablest lawyers in the State.

It is said that San Francisco is after
the National Democratic Convention, and in order to secure it will offer
to pay the railroad fare and hotel bills of the party. This is the way they do things on the Pacific coast.

Nineteen miners went to their death
down a shaft at the Ammonoidea mine, on Wednesday. The rope by which the cage was lowered broke, precipitating the men to the bottom of the shaft. Seventeen were killed outright and two others fatally injured.

A mob of 3,000 men surrounded the city and county jails and searched the court house at Topeka, Kansas. Wednesday night, in a determined effort to secure Jas. McLain, a brute who had murdered his nine-months-old child.
Only the intelligent foresight of the officials saved the wretch from the fate
he so richly deserved.

As a result of the long dry spell,
there has been no log tide in the river
for a long time and the mills at Ford have stopped running for want of timber. As a large number of families are dependent on these mills for the means of support, longitudinal drought would entail much inconvenience if not actual suffering.—(Winchester Democrat.)

Last Tuesday Nelson Hallon, of Menifee county, was at work felling a tree and in some way he threw it so it fell on him, crushing him to death.
He was a good citizen and an honorable and highly respected man, just in the prime of life, being about 45 years of age. He was buried on Wednesday at Frenchburg by the Masonic Lodge, of which order he was a member.

Fisher's barber shop is the place to go for first-class hair-cut or a nice, smooth shave. He employs none but first-class workmen and guarantees satisfaction in every respect. One of the best evidences of the good work done in his shop is that his customers will go nowhere else once they have tried him. Remember the place—
Maysville street, under Green, Clay &
Chenault's store.

Judge B. J. Peters celebrated his 86th birthday on Tuesday last, November 3d. A few of his friends were with him and enjoyed a bountiful repast and wish him many years of usefulness. To our greeting of a day or two ago "How are you, Judge?" he answered: "Mrs. Peters says I am well, and she never tells anything but truth." His form is still erect and his step more elastic than many men of fifty.

The New "Private Secretary."

The new "Private Secretary" was the attraction at the Capital Theatre yesterday afternoon and night. Good houses greeted the performances at both appearances. The performances were all that could be desired, and the auditors applauded to the echo. It was "laugh" from beginning to end.
No detail was omitted which would contribute to the pleasure of the house. The crowd went to laugh, and they did. The principal was good, and his support equally as efficient. There was not a "star" in the company, but all did their work sufficiently that the crowd voted them all stars. It was an exceptionally good performance of a good play and everybody was satisfied.—Arkansas Gazette,
Nov. 1st, 1891.

Opera House, Saturday, Nov. 14.
Reviewed seats at Lloyd's.

I still have nice line of queen-size
on hand that I am offering at a bargain.

Lard cans for sale at MITCHELL'S.

For SALE—A good saddle mare and a gentle pony suitable for children.

BEAN BROS.

Married, on Wednesday last, in this city, Clay Shackelford to Miss Mary Ann Tipson, Elder B. W. Trimble
officiating.

The American Cranberry Growers' Association reports that the cranberry crop will be 20 per cent, smaller than that of last year.

Montgomery Commandery will meet
at its half Holiday night, November 13th, at 7 o'clock sharp. Work in the Red Cross degree. J. A. OHEAR, Recorder.

Dr. G. A. Richart and family have moved from the Tyler-Apperson building and taken rooms at the Marshall property on Clay street. Dr.
Richart will continue to occupy his office in Tyler-Apperson block.

The Montgomery county F. & L. U. met on Saturday in this city, and after passing resolutions endorsing the Growers' tobacco warehouse and agreeing to stand by it, selected J. H.
Mason as delegate to the State Convention, which meets at Elizabethtown to-day.

The series of meetings at the Methodist church closed on Sunday evening. There were some twelve or thirteen additions, we are informed,
as a result of the services held. Rev.
Joseph Rand, of Lexington, will be with the church on Thursday evening next and hold services with it over Sunday and perhaps longer.

Dr. J. F. Jones, of Poplar Plains,
has sold his business to Dr. J. C. S.
Brice of Owingsville. We can heartily recommend Dr. Brice to the people of Poplar Plains as a most excellent physician and gentleman.—Flemington Gazette.

Dr. Jones has not yet decided where he will locate.

Will be here.

On next Court-day, between the hours of 10 and 2 o'clock, all persons desiring to consult with the General agent of the Hurst Home Insurance Company will find him in the Anwo-gate office. The farmers who are interested in this enterprise would do well to call and see Mr. Hurst. He organized the company and drafted its government, hence can explain everything about it. The company is still booming and promises enormous strength.

Lost-Dogs.

Strayed or stolen from my place on the Kiddville pike, on Thursday, November 5th, a pointer bitch with white body, liver colored head and white stripe down forehead and nose,
a liver colored spot on her right side
and a short tail; also a pointer dog with white body, solid liver colored head and a liver colored spot at the root of tail. Any information that will lead to their recovery will be liberally rewarded. WM. MORTON,
Mt. Sterling, Ky.

A dastardly attempt was made to wreck a train on the N. X. & M.
R. R., on Mr. Thos. Calk's place, west of the city, some time Saturday night.
Early Sunday morning Mr. Calk had occasion to go up the road to a distant portion of his farm, and discovered, lying piled on the track, a number of large rocks strewn at irregular intervals of some fifty yards. He notified some of the railroad hands and had them removed. Fortunately no train passed in the darkness after they were placed there. This is the second attempt made by some dastardly villain
in the same place, within a short time.

A Rare Treat.

The bachelor teachers of the K. T.
S. are proud to acknowledge an exceptionally fine serenade, rendered Friday night last by young ladies more or less connected with the school.

We were peacefully engaged in the innocent and intellectual game of crokinole, when suddenly, without warning or opportunity for defense
on our part, there arose a manifold wall as from four thousand souls in the throes of Gehenna. In our own and the one adjacent, it was like a multiple of the great Kilkenny cat fight, which was such a howling scene that two contestants ate each other "bodacious" up—nothing being left but two tails. In this unapproachable medley of melodies, we caught a pathetic and touching refrain, something like this—

"Didley diddle sat in the corner,
The cow was eating the moon.
He put in his thumb and took out the (sport) The dish what a great boy am I."

Das fell on my neck and wept,
while I reached for the water pitcher.
Just as I threw it I heard a moan under the bed—"Pss on Gabriel, for the Lord's sake. I didn't do it." It was Andy. The water had some effect, for soon a patter of little feet on the pavement like a regiment of cavalry told us the wicked had ceased from troubling, and the weary were at rest. Mr. Winder had not been asleep ten minutes when I heard him murmur, "What strange things we see when we have no guns!"

The drought still continues with us and the complaints of the farmers about the lack of stock water are becoming grievous, some of them being compelled to haul water quite a distance. In the city many cisterns are entirely empty and a fire would prove very disastrous should it get underway before the fire department could get to work.

We are informed that Conrad Heilindulging in the marital pastime of whipping his wife. A few nights ago he filled up on mean whisky, came a terrible beating. Sunday night

some parties, presumably his neighbors,
tiring of his abuse of his family, took him out and gave him a taste of his own medicine, assuring him that if his offense was ever repeated he would face much worse next time
they took him in hand.

Sharpsburg Items.

It is a little quiet in town
week.

Mrs. M. E. Wood is occupying her new residence.

The Post-office has been removed to its new quarters.

Doess Ben Harrison read the handwriting on the wall.

Sharpsburg has now a building and loan association.

The more intelligent the farmers become, the freer they will be.

Several of our young ladies were out gathering autumn leaves last
week.

Mr. Tolie Young has improved his residence very much by the addition of a new kitchen and cellar.

John Craycraft and Miss Rosina Chaffin, young people of the Creek neighborhood, went to Ad-eade, O., last Wednesday, and married. Next!

The first snow of the season fell Tuesday. There was not much of it, but a few flakes fell about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Work on the new Christian church is progressing nicely. When completed it will have the tallest spire in town, so far as elevation is concerned.

Don't forget that the farm of J. J.
Clyde Nelson and J. T. Jones, con-highest bidder next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, on the premises.

Miss Mary Turner, of San Luis

Electricity and the Arts.

Boston is prolific in new electrical work. Just now a new claimant for hours of electrical welding or forging is receiving attention. An exhibition was given last week by Mr. Geo. D. Marion. The press accounts state that one experiment was the melting into liquid form a bar of steel an inch in diameter and 12 inches long, in 45 seconds, without the temperature of the room being raised a single degree from its normal condition. Another thing shown was the making of a steel railroad spike. The bar was cut into the required length, the pieces passed through the electrical machine, where one end was heated, and then to a die, which shapes the head on the heated end, the point being compressed into shape without heating. Another exhibit was the forming of an auger screw, the flat bar of iron being fastened in the machine at the two ends and heated almost instantly, and then twisted into the required spiral by the automatic turn of the machine. These experiments were witnessed by Dr. W. H. Wahl, Prof. Van der Weide and others.—[Electric.

Observations made for some time past at Berlin, Potsdam, Prague and other cities of Europe have shown that their geographical latitudes have decreased by two-thirds of a second. It is supposed that the axis of the earth has shifted by that much in space, and in order to settle the matter, an expedition has been sent out to Honolulu, which, being the antipodes of Central Europe, will show an equal change in the opposite direction if the explanation is correct. The expedition will remain there for a year, under the direction of Dr. Macuse, of the Berlin Observatory.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's Life Pills, Buckle's Aronica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. W. S. Lloyd, druggist.

The enormous mass of extra dead weight due to the carrying of the boiler, fuel and water in the old locomotive will be entirely unnecessary in the railways of the future, which will be propelled electrically. Undoubtedly the future electro-locomotion will show a motor on every axle, or, at any rate, upon two axles of each car, and every car running as a unit, in which case they can run coupled together in a train or not, as may be convenient.—Philadelphia Press.

Bucklin's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, clapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. S. Lloyd.

No sort of birds, beasts or creeping thing will touch a castor oil plant. It seems to be a rank poison to all the animal world. Even a goat will starve before biting off a leaf, and a horse will sniff at it and turn up his upper lip as though it had the most detestable odor on the face of the earth. Army worms and the locusts will pass it by, though they may eat every other green thing in sight, and there is no surer way to drive a mole from a lawn than to plant a few castor beans here and there.

What is the use of going right over the old track again? There is an admirer in the path which his own feet have worn. You must make tracks into the unknown. That is what you have your board and clothes for. Why do you ever mend your clothes, unless that, wearing them, you may mend your ways?—Thoreau.

At this season of the year people can not be too careful about keeping their bowels regular. Bilious and malarial diseases are often brought on by allowing the bowels to become torpid. An occasional dose of St. Patrick's Pills is all that would be required, and might prevent serious sickness. For sale by T. G. Julian.

Skobeloff's Revenge.

During the Russo-Turkish war, says Archibald Forbes in Nineteenth Century, the day after the passage of the Danube had been made good, the Emperor of Russia crossed the river to congratulate him and thank his gallant soldiers. In front of the long, massive line formed on the slope below Sistova, awaiting the coming of the great White Czar, stood Draoumirog, Yolchine and Skobeloff—the three Generals who had been the leaders of the successful attempt. Dragomiroff, the Divisional Commander, the Emperor embraced and gave him the Cross of St. George; he shook hands warmly with Yolchine, the Brigade Commander, and gave him, too, a St. George to add to the decorations which this cheery little warrior had been gathering from boyhood in the Caucasus and Central Asia.

Then the Emperor strolled to where Skobeloff stood, and men watched the little scene with interest, for it was notorious that Skobeloff was in disfavor with his sovereign, and yet of him the camps were ringing with the story of his conduct on the previous morning. Would Alexander maintain his umbrella or would he make it manifest that it had been dispelled by Skobeloff's heroism? For at least a minute the Czar hesitated, as the two, proud, soldierly men confronted each other; you could trace in his countenance the struggle between disapproval and appreciation. It was soon over—and the wrong way for Skobeloff. The Emperor frowned, turned short on his heel, and strode abruptly away, without a word or a gesture of greeting or recognition. A man of strong prejudices, he was not yet able to exorcise from his mind the calumnies that had blackened to him the character of Skobeloff. That officer, for his part, flushed scarlet, then grew deadly pale, and seemed to conquer an impulse as he set his teeth hard and maintained his disciplined immobility.

It was a fragrant insult, in the very face of the army, and a gross injustice; but Skobeloff endured it in a proud silence that seemed to me very grand, nor did I ever hear him allude to the slur. The time soon came that that gallant and brilliant soldier when he could afford to be magnanimous. As the campaign progressed he distinguished himself again and again, so that his name became a synonym in the army for splendid daring as well as for opportune skill. On the 3d of September Skobeloff, after exploit after exploit, devised and led the storm of the Turkish position in Lotcha, and drove his adversaries out of that strong place. On the following night, at his own dinner-table, in the Gorin Streltsi headquarters, the Emperor stood upon high to honor him with the toast of "Skobeloff, the hero of Lotcha!" It is not given to many men to earn a revenge so full and so grand as that.

THE ADVOCATE.

All About Porcupines.

There has been considerable talk in our paper on the habits of the American porcupine. Now, I was a naturalist and appraiser for the Fox and Wisconsin Improvement Company, in twenty-eight of the counties of Wisconsin, and trapped in the northwestern part of that State, and I think I met this wood hog in very many of his habitats, and I know something about the critter. Why, he will eat anything that any hog will, and more. He is a thief by night around your camp, will carry off your axes and trifle the barrels thereof to the last, if placed in a dark, cool spot.

a very poor opinion of the American porcupine as we found him and don't want any of him in ours.—[Forest and Stream.]

Agricultural Notes.

Returns indicate a moderate apple crop.

The pear crop taken as a whole represents about the usual average.

Lovett's Best is one of the promising new varieties of blackberries.

The indications are that the onion crop is about the same as last year.

Fall and Winter pears may be kept a long time if placed in a dark, cool spot.

It is reported that Nebraska will make 6,000,000 pounds of beet sugar this year.

The Kansas sorghum sugar crop will, it is believed, reach at least 3,000,000 pounds.

Earnliness and productiveness are features claimed for the new grape, Early Ohio.

How can surface feeding plants fertilizer six inches or more below the reach of their roots.

Without shade moisture, the nitrogen in the soil returns to the great fountain in the atmosphere.

Forest fires have worked destruction in different parts of Wisconsin, Michigan and northwestern Minnesota; but a perfect nuisance around camp where you have to look everything up or hang it high and dry.

But as to their habits. In northern Wisconsin we found that almost invariably during the winter they fed on the tender buds of the hemlock and the linden or basswood, sojourning for a week or ten days at a time on one tree and then crossing to the other. Their gullies or tracks through the snow could be found in every direction and they invariably led to and from these trees to their den or nest under a turned up stump or rock in the rocks. We could always find one of them lying out on a limb of one of the other of these trees. An old Indian that was camped (his habitat could be called such) near us one winter was too naturally tired to hunt deer, of which there were plenty in the neighborhood; but he could easily find the trail of a porcupine; and it is said that he absolutely ate more than sixty of these stinking animals during the season. Eat them! Faugh! Stick your nose once into a porcupine's nest toward spring and it would be enough. They are species of hog. Scald off the hair and quills and you have a little pig to all appearances. Looks nice too. A kind of fat and of fat before reaching the meat, but of so rank a flavor that none but a starving man could tolerate it for a moment. We have in our experience been driven to great extremities, when crow, hawk and owl made comparatively fair soups; but porcupine flesh, whew! we would starve first. We have tried it, and the meanest, ill-flavored flesh in the world is the American porcupine as we found it.

Why, the only thing about them worth a continental is a few of their broken quills for the squaws to work up to sell women or tenderfeet. And these same quills are a big nuisance sometimes, for we had one driven through our moccasin into the sole of our foot. We pulled it out with a pair of bullet moulds, (the whole of it, we supposed), but the foot festered and was very sore for several days, when it got perfectly well. A year afterward a cat boil, as we thought, was found on our thigh. It was quite painful, and our canvas trousser continually caught on it. One evening after being annoyed considerably during the day from the friction, we made careful examination and discovered a point of something protruding from the apex of our little cat-boil. Upon applying the bullet-moulds a good half inch of porcupine quill was drawn out. A quill, as you all aware, is a sharp point, ginlet-like, like the head of a wheat. After the first penetration of the skin, every motion of the body will cause it to work its way farther in. We have known dogs to have these quills work through their jaws and neck, and I am informed even through their heads. We had suffered no inconvenience or pain whatever from this piece of quill for more than a year, showing conclusively that in its travels it had confined itself to the easy road of flesh which the doctors say has no escape. This is, that feeling is confined to the nerves and muscles lying between the skin and flesh, or between the flesh and bone of humanity, and I presume of animals as well. No sir; we have

Nature's Boarding Houses.

But perhaps the most curious, though not uncommon boarding house is that of the sea anemone. The sea anemone's house is, in the general plan, a fleathy bag standing on its flattened bottom and with the open end for a mouth. This mouth is surrounded by one or many rows of tentacles, or arms, which are very sensitive and armed with myriad microscopic poison darts along their sides. When anything living comes within the reach of these waving arms they close upon it and soon sting it to death. Then they pass it down into the bag, which acts as its stomach. In fact, it is practically all stomach. Nevertheless, some little fish have learned how to get into the bag unharmed by the murderous arms. There they find a safe home and a bountiful table, writes Frederick Gardner, Jr., in Far and Near.

The jelly fish is a floating bell whose transparent flesh, though firm, is nearly 99 per cent water. Much to my surprise on tasting one once I found it salt water, too! When the colored eggs are forming they look very pretty through the clear body. It is also armed with poison darts like the sea anemone, to whose family it belongs. Some of the larger ones can give severe stings to bathers and are to be avoided. These can generally be known by their darker color and long red, "streamers." Under this dangerous bell fishes and other animals swim and receive their share of the food of all kinds captured by their host the jelly fish. I think no more charming accommodation could be asked. A cool crystal palace over your head, protection from all ordinary enemies, plenty of food and nothing to do but swim along the same leisurely rate as your host—an ideal sort of summer home.

The sea-cucumber (holothuride) keeps quite a hotel, some boarders and some boarders. His popular name comes from his resemblance in shape to a cucumber, though in color he generally resembles the sand in which he lies buried and on which he feeds. He is a near relative of the terrible flesh-eating star-fish who is so destructive to our oyster; but from his appearance and habits you would never suspect it. He looks like a fleshy bag with a tough leathery skin, and he lives altogether on nothing more reprehensible than sand. Yet with what seems so poorly provided a table as the organic particles in sand he has a great many boarders. Many pretty little fishes, looking like a conjuror's sword, long, slender and scaly, live in one part of his body, and little "min-crabs" in another, while other varieties are often found with them. It reminds one of table d'hôte at a large hotel, when a good meal of rich sand is found and all have their secretion of both fat and milk.

If you have allowed the manure to accumulate in the barnyard, better get that out before doing the fall ploughing, then the yard will be clean if it should freeze up when you do not expect it.

Overfeeding the cow tends to poverty. Not only is the superfluous food wasted, but the overloading of the stomach tends to derange the whole system and decrease both the secretion of both fat and milk.

It is little things that have much to do with the successful sale or even the keeping of butter. Except when the butter is to be packed in stone crocks it should always be packed with parchment paper. This applies whether the butter to be packed is to be put on the market or kept for home.

Hoard's Dairymen says: "The cow is winning her way into the hearts of the Southerners. One instance in proof thereof is the first consignment of cheese ever received in St. Louis from Arkansas, which reached that market lately from the Grand Prairie Dairy Company, at Stuttgart, Ark."

The French Government, in order to encourage horse breeding, buys the best stallions and charges a fee of perhaps $3 for their service. While no national interference with the enterprise of those who are engaged in breeding and standing good horses is desirable in this country, there is one regulation that might be adopted by the State authorities, and that is to prevent unsound and worthless stallions from doing business. In this country a service fee no higher than twice that exacted by the French government is generally a mark of an inferior horse. Such horses get poor colts, and you can sell them cheap. STATE OF KENTUCKY, § 5C.
MONTGOMERY COUNTY, § 5C.

This day personally appeared before me, a Justice of the Peace in and for the county and State aforesaid, Henderson Phipps, who made oath that two stray steers about four years old each, one a pale red, will weigh about 1,400 lbs., the other, dark red, will weigh about 1,500 lbs., neither of them having ear marks or brands, were taken up by Henderson Phipps, near his farm, on the 19th of September, 1891. I further certify that I have personally examined the said steers and value them at eighty dollars. The taker-up of said steers, Henderson Phipps' residence is near Steptoe Station, Montgomery county, Kentucky. This notice will be duly recorded in my office, and a copy hereof delivered to said Henderson Phipps. This 6th day of October, 1891.

In a new bicycle the wheels, instead of being fitted with pneumatic or cushion tires, have the grooves fitted with complete cycles of balls, which revolve on pivots fixed in the groove of the wheels. These balls bite the ground, and the machine travels up and down hill with a wonderful celerity.

The following would indicate that there is still hope for the parapets. Frank Cornelius, Purcell, Indian Territory, son of Lincoln, Mr. Pinson, whose wife had paralysis, is the first to try a bath of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. To their great surprise before the bath had all been used she was a great deal better. Her face had been drawn to one side, but the Pain Balm relieved all pain and soreness, and the month assumed its natural shape. It is also unequalled for rheumatism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles for sale by T. G. Julian.

THE ADVOCATE.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The firm of Thomas Dana & Co., wholesale grocers of Boston, has dissolved, owing to the Maverick Bank complications.

The control of the Baltimore Sugar Refinery has passed into the hands of a syndicate of New York and Boston capitalists.

The New York Presbytery on Wednesday promptly acquitted Prof. B. A. Briggs of the charges of heresy preferred against him some time since.

Charles Morton Stewart has been elected President of the Board of Trustees of Johns Hopkins University, in place of Judge George W. Dohbin, deceased.

Ladies of Dublin will present a silver mounted whip to young McDermott, who whipped Tim Healy for an alleged insult on Mrs. Parnell and Miss Parnell.

Examiner Ewer reports that there is now $2,500,000 in cash in the Maverick Bank vaults and collections still coming in. Much of the paper in assets will prove available and marketable.

A flock of about forty wild geese spent Friday night in a wheat field near Guthrie, and destroyed an acre or more of wheat just peeping through the ground.—(Hopkinsville Kentuckian).

Judge Taintor has decided that wholesale liquor dealers located outside of Connecticut can not sell liquor in that State without taking out a license in each county where the liquor is to be sold.

Six notices of intention to contest the right of seats in the new national House of Representatives have been forwarded to the Clerk of the House. Three of the contestants are Republicans and three Democrats.

The Washington National Bank, of Boston, will not sign the agreement of the Boston Banks to assess themselves 3 per cent. of their loans to relieve the depositors of the Maverick Bank. The other banks will probably all sign.

A special from Waco, Texas, says a disastrous collision has occurred on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad, a few miles south of Waco. Section 2 of a stock train ran into the rear of Section 1, causing the death of four stock men and the serious injury of the engineer of Section 2.

Whiskey will be assessed at $8 per barrel this year, that figure having been fixed upon by the Committee on valuation, composed of the State Auditor, State Treasurer and Secretary of State. This is less than 20 cents per gallon. The receipts from this source of revenue amount to about $28,000 a year.

The President, it is said, has offered Senator Hisecock, of New York, the war portfolio, vacant by Secretary Proctor's resignation, and providing the legislature is Republican, Fasset is to be rewarded for his sacrifice by being made Senator. Hisecock denies that a tender of the position has been made him.

The Kentucky Association of Lexington made an assignment on Wednesday to Gen. Robinson, Louis Straus and Richard Stoll. The liabilities are $62,000 and the assets more than sufficient to meet them. The property, if cut into lots, is said will bring more than $100,000. The Association had made an effort to increase its membership and thus raise money sufficient to pay off its floating indebtedness. Failing in this, it was attempted to make a sale to the Trotting Horse Association, but the terms could not be agreed upon, and since suit had been brought against the Association, an assignment was the best thing under the circumstances.

Among the personal effects belonging to the estate of the late Isaac Kimberlin, of Scott County, Ind., are upward of 1,500 old American newspapers, printed from seventy-five to one hundred and fifty years ago. Most of them are New England papers, printed in colonial days. The lot, together with a large number of old pamphlets, circulars, maps and valuable manuscripts, which the deceased had a fancy for collecting, have been sold to the Hon. Wm. H. English, who will make liberal use of them in preparing his forthcoming history of Indiana.

Farmers should be on guard against a class of sharks who are doing a thriving business in Southern Indiana in organizing purchasing companies. These rascals offer to sell goods to farmers at wholesale prices, charging them $5 as initiators, for which makes them members of the company. They are shrewd in their transactions and represent that farmers are being cheated by local dealers, and after they have initiated a farmer, they take his note for $50 for a bill of goods which they claim will cost at retail at least $125. Many victims have been robbed of hundreds of dollars in this way.—[Louisville Times].

The released convicts from the Briceville mines are being recaptured and returned to Nashville. Every train almost from Kentucky and east Tennessee brings in its quota. It is said Gov. Buchanan will return the convicts to the mines, build heavier stockades for their confinement, and place them under strong military guard. The free miners not content with what they have done, are further complicating matters by going on a strike. Those at the "Thistle" mine went out on Thursday because a check weighman was not at once given them in accordance with their demands. Those at Jellico and Newcomb also threaten to quit.

The members of the bar of Memphis, Tenn., are very indignant because Judge Dubose, of the Criminal Court, on Thursday sent Col. George Gault to jail for half an hour, because he would not stop speaking when ordered by him. Col. Gault was defending a negro, and the jury came in convicting his client. He rose to make a motion for a new trial, and Judge Dubose refused to hear him, ordering him to quit, which order he disobeyed. He refused to make an apology to the court when released, saying he was only doing his duty by his client. It is said steps will be taken to have the Judge impeached.

Grain Notes.

Kentucky produced about 12,000,000 bushels of wheat this year, which is probably the largest crop that she has ever raised.

Three cents will cover the fluctuations in the local wheat market in the last two months.

There is more uncertainty about the size of the corn crop of the country than usual at this period of the year.

The two Dakotas, with a total wheat crop of 75,100,000 bushels, will average more than 100 bushels for every man, woman and child in the two States. They raise nearly as much wheat as all England, with her 26,000,000 people. A few years ago, before the separation, they raised 52,000,000 bushels, and that is their next best record.

Of course the size of the export to Europe will be a great factor in determining the price of wheat this winter. But those who calculate will not forget that Europe's takings will not be regulated by her wants, but by her ability to purchase. This is an important provision.

It is probable that Iowa will lead the States in the production of corn, with a yield in the neighborhood of 300,000,000 bushels, and Kentucky will be well up, with about 80,000,000 bushels. Away back before the war, Kentucky was the leading corn growing State of the Union, whence we get our name, Corn Crackers, but with the opening of the immense prairies of the West it was impossible for Kentucky to maintain her position.

The corn exports are not growing, as some think they should. The Europeans do not take kindly to corn bread, and they cannot afford to import corn as food for their farm beasts.

The gradual decline in the price of corn has been coequal with the gradual increase in the estimates of the crop.

Rye is not receiving much attention just now. But rye has never been an important crop in this country.

With a heavily increased oat crop it is natural that prices should be low.

The Southern States make a comparatively good showing in the wheat totals—that is, compared with former years—for outside the northern tiers of Southern States very little wheat is raised there.—[Courier-Journal].

Charles B. Hanford, the leading man formerly with Booth and Barrett, has purchased from the Barrett Estate all the scenery, costumes, property, &c., of the Booth and Barrett production of "Julius Caesar," and will star next season, playing the part of Marc Antony exclusively.

The Growers' House and the Exchange.

It seems that the Louisville tobacco warehouses, known as the Exchange warehouses, are determined to wage a continual warfare upon the Growers' House, regardless of any and all consequences.

When the Growers' House went into business last spring it was agreed by all the other warehouses that its sales should be held in regular rotation with the other houses, and that all the buyers of the Louisville market should have the liberty of attending its sales and becoming purchasers, and for a time all went smoothly on. But, during the summer and early fall, the Growers' House became such a formidable rival that the warehousemen became very restless, and finally decided that they would stand its rivalry no longer. Accordingly they called a meeting of the Exchange for the first Monday in October. At that meeting they passed a resolution, declaring that buyers who are members of the Exchange should no longer have the liberty of buying at the Growers' House. But, in spite of this edict, the Growers' House continued to thrive and prosper, having at their sales all the buyers, except a few who were interested in the profits of the old warehouses. Finding themselves foiled in this attempt to crush out the Growers' House, they called another meeting for the first week in November. At this meeting they passed another resolution, declaring that they would no longer sell in rotation with the Growers' House. The result of this move was as unsuccessful as the first, for, on the next day, when the regular time for the sale at the Growers' House came around, the buyers, who buy about eighty per cent. of all the tobacco sold in the Louisville market, walked as straight to the Growers' House as they could go, and gave it one of the very best sales it had had since it went into business, and have continued to do so each succeeding day since. So that the Growers' House has been made to rejoice in the very best weekly sales it has ever made, there being but three rejections made during the entire week. The Globe and the Planters' houses, which were selling at the same time, "may not be faring so well in the absence of these buyers. But then the brunt of all this tomfoolery falls on the growers and shippers, and not on the warehousemen. Is it not high time that the growers and shippers of tobacco were looking to their interests?

County Superintendent's Report.

District No. 18, Oak Valley—Reports 64 children; draws $144.64; Trustees, Jno. McPherson, Jas. Conkwright and Hugh Paisley, all of whom visit the school very seldom and seem to take very little interest in the school anyway; really, this is one of the very poorest schools in the county; the house is worth about thirty dollars and the furniture about five; required the value of Miss Eva McKinney's school? The teacher is very zealous, indeed, but the whole surroundings seem to be against a good school; Children do not feel like trying to do much in such a house and with such furniture; highest number in school, 26; lowest, 7; present, 15; in practical arithmetic Eddie Garrett; primary, Jennie West, Lillie McPherson, Lee Cory, very good.

District No. 27, Howard's Mills—Miss Sallie Berkley the efficient teacher; her first school; district very much pleased; reports 56 children; draws $126.56; highest number at school, 28; lowest, 15; present, 24; the house is in very good repair now; lots of nice wood, and the fires made early by one of the boys; the brush history class is to be found here; Trustees, Wm. Anderson, Mr. Patton and Thos. Barnes; they visit school occasionally; the children are kept busily employed and they are all doing well; there are a few pupils living near school house who are not attending; look them up!

District No. 15, Bailey's Institute—J. Shrum, teacher; is young, but very energetic; the house is very poor, indeed, and very little furniture; reports 45 children; draws $101.70; Trustees, Wm. George, Wm. Thompson and R. Montjoy; seldom visit the school; no good wood; highest number at school, 25; lowest, 10; present, 18; school began August 10.

District No. 20, Gum Grove—Mrs. Emma Walker, teacher; she is giving entire satisfaction, and has added much to the school interest here; the average attendance better than ever before an census reports less. Reports 88 children in district; draws $198.88; highest number, 52; lowest, 32; house is a large frame, and with a little work some of the larger cracks can be closed; needs new floor and a water bucket badly; Trustees, Geo. W. Ficklin, Jas. Welsh and Madison Willoughby; school began July 13th and will close in November; patrons should supplement fund and continue till the close of the year.

District No. 25, Plum Lick—Miss Cora Northcutt, teacher; ten months' experience and, I think, is doing the very best she can; district reports 73 children; draws $164.93; highest number at school, 23; lowest, 4; present, 17; this school should be one of the very best in the county; good house; new nice furniture; good stove; good blackboard, etc; on good pine and 23 the highest number. Now, who are the Trustees? Jno. G. Crouch, Mr. Bannister and some other one. They seem to forget that when the attendance is small it makes the cost of tuition per child appear large.

Louisville Tobacco Market, Furnished by Glover & Durrett—Louisville Tobacco Warehouse.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 1,817 hds., with receipts for the same period of 358 hds.; sales on our market since Jan'y 1st, amount to 140,065 hds. Sales of the crop of 1890 on our market to this date 98,021 hds.

The offerings have been light on our market this week and there is no material change to note in prices, but the general tendency has been toward an improvement. Quite a little lot of tobacco has been sold during the week at prices ranging from $25 to $30. Only a few hogheads of the new crop have come forward as yet, but the prices realized for such this week have been in better figures than was realized for the first sales of the new crop. The following quotations fairly represent our market for our old烟叶:

Trash (dark) or damaged tobacco $2 to $3.
Colony trash $3 to $6.
Common lugs not colony, $3 to $4.
Colony lugs $4 to $10.
Good leaf, $4 to $7.
Medium to good leaf, $7 to $12.
Good to fine fillers, $12 to $22.
Select wrappery tobacco, $22 to $33.

THE AD

HAD HE MADE A MISTAKE

Mr. Horsley, at the breakfast table, was reading the stock quotations to his wife, who always took an affectionate, if vague, interest in his business. Suddenly, as his eye roved over the paper, it lightened.

"Ah! good! Listen to this, Kitty: 'The alumnus of the class of '87 (my class, you know) who has now (this week) will hold a reunion at the university next month. There will be a banquet speech, etc.' Well," folding the paper, "I'm glad of that. I shall like to see the boys again. Some of them have been very successful."

"None more than yourself, John."

"No, probably not." The rich banker nodded thoughtfully; he was a pure product of the South, and given every care of his life to money-making, and naturally he fully appreciated the value of money.

"We're not done badly," he said. "There's Tom Hare, too, Tom is head of the largest wheat syndicate in Illinois, and Cardon—he is president of a railroad. Dumont is a United States judge, very little competency. The boys have done well by themselves—most of them."

"Except poor Will Morgan," said Mrs. Horsley, with a sigh.

"Yes, yes! Well, Morgan was obstinate, Kitty. He has himself to thank for all his troubles. When he left college I said to him: 'You have a few hundred dollars, so go to the mountains and make your fortune.'

"I mean, you can't waste land in the northern liberties. Go in with me. It can be bought for a song, but the town is going out that way. In ten years cut up the land into lots, and we shall be rich men.' He saw the truth of it. Morgan's no fool; but he said,

"I must have that money to educate me for the ministry, and into the ministry I go. I go with my heart and—here we are. I honor Mr. Morgan. He's a high principled fellow. But—"

Mrs. Horsley was silent for a few minutes, then she said:

"I suppose Will cannot afford to come to this reunion?"

"No, indeed. He has a little missionary church among the coal miners at $60 a year. He has five children."

"Poor boy!" He married Elizabeth Wynne, you know. She was a dear friend of mine, a delicate and fastidious girl. John."

"Yes, my dear."

"Why can we not ask Will and his wife to the reunion—here, to stay at the house? Buy the railway tickets today, and let me write and inclose them in the letter."

"A good idea! I shall be glad to give a little pleasure to the poor creatures."

As he was going out of the door he stopped.

"They'll be very shabby, you know; they will look queer among your other guests."

"It matters nothing to me," said Kitty loftily. "My social position does not depend upon the clothes they wear."

But when, a week or two later, the poor clergyman and his wife arrived, she was startled out of her usual calm composure.

"They had the pitched, wan faces of people who never have enough to eat," she said to her husband. "Bessy's gown is one of her wedding dresses. She looks as if she had come out of the Ark. And the Merchants and Townes are coming to dinner tonight. Something must be done at once."

"What does it matter? Morgan has been with us all day," said her husband. "No body thinks of him except of course because his overcoat was patched."

But Mrs. Horsley hurried out of the room. In a few minutes she tapped at Mrs. Morgan's chamber door. She carried a pretty dinner dress; it was tastefully trimmed and a little soiled.

"Bess, dear, we used to be just the same size. Won't you wear this for me?"

Mrs. Morgan glanced at the gown and then at her friend's face.

"I would prefer to wear my own, Kitty," she said coldly, "unless you very much wish it."

"To do with you, people are coming for dinner!"

"I understand. I will wear it."

Mrs. Horsley laid down the dress and lingered uncomfortably.

"I meant to be kind, Bessy," she said.

These tears stood in Mrs. Morgan's eyes.

"I know," she said. "This pride is wicked in me, I suppose. I am used to taking old clothes at home from strangers. But you—we were girls together, you know, and equals. And how to think that you have to clothe me that I may not disgrace you in the eyes of our friends."

The visit of the Morgans lasted a week; it was the first time that they had come to their old home since their marriage, sixteen years ago.

"We never could afford it," Mr. Morgan said to his host, the morning of his arrival. "If we ever saved a dollar or two it was needed for the children—five of them, you know. I could not afford to live on ourselves. So you can guess the delight with which we read your letter and found that we could really see the old house again."

Gave his friend's hand a heavy wrench, looking into his face with glowing eyes. Much of William Morgan's power over men lay in his genial, affectionate nature, and in his gay courage. Among his old schoolmates he was always high ranking out as handsomely as when he was a boy. This was during the first day of his visit; after that his wife noticed that he grew grave and thoughtful. On the night of the banquet he came home with a haggard face, and sat down beside her without a word.

"Are you not going to tell me about it?" she asked. "You have been looking forward to this reunion as the happiest day in your life. Were all of your old friends there?"

"Yes," he said, rousing himself. "Only one or two were absent. It was very pleasant to hear the accounts of their lives. The boys have been very successful, as a rule. Two or three have made brilliant careers at law and several are enormously rich, like Jack Horsley."

"I stopped, rose and walked nervously to the window—I, with a household of children, am starving on six hundred a year," he broke forth passionately.

Mrs. Morgan did not answer at once; only her eyes blazed with anger and despair. And when human eyes had seen Mrs. Horsley's butler glance at her gown tonight, recognizing it as one of his mistress', and Mrs. Horsley had admires her by showing her little girl's Parisian toilette for the coming winter. Mrs. Morgan turned over the dainty confidences, smiling, thinking of her own girl's patched shoes.

"Very well," thought, "should this child be wrapped in velvet and lace while mine have not flannels to keep them from the cold?"

The question is as old as the world; was it not the doubt looked out of the eyes of wife and husband as they faced their fate that night?

"Do not tell me I made a mistake?" asked Mrs. Morgan.

"Bless you, yes. See them every day. We all took care of them. To tell you the truth, most of the folks will drop in to welcome you tonight. My wife and the other women have had a good time, and the bakers have been engaged for years past. They're waiting for you to marry them. I want his blessings on my marriage," Jennie said, with tears in her eyes, to-day."

"And old Mother Finn is worse," said the other deacon, "and she is afraid she will die before you come. She thinks if the person's beside her she can go down quietly into the dark valley."

"Have you seen my children lately?" asked Mrs. Morgan.

"Bless you, yes. See them every day. We all took care of them. To tell you the truth, most of the folks will drop in to welcome you tonight.
